STRANGE, BUT TRUE TO LIFE.

When Yours Truly was a lad as most of you doubtless know, I lived back in the forks of the creek, years ago when Cleveland was President, cotton was four cents a pound and times were hard. A fellow, who was so inclined, had plenty of times for observations, and the writer used to delight in figuring out the why of things. However, little dreaming that in the good year 1922 I would be running a One Horse Prune Shop on North Second Avenue and writing Buck Shot Border Philosophy, read by thousands.
But there was one thing I could never figure out, that was, "why did my head bump so hard when I struck the rafters, hunting eggs up in the dark hay-loft, when I was creeping along just as slowly and carefully as possible."
My poor abused men Readers, no doubt can recall to mind the many dark nights you had to crawl out of bed in the wee small hours to let the Pup out or get Ma a drink or something. And how you were just as careful as could be, creeping very slowly, very cautiously across the room. In fact, you thought you were going slow enough for anything. But just about the time you thought you were out of the danger zone, safe across "no man's land" so to speak, bang went your shin-bone against Ma's old sewing rocker, foot stool or something.
But the surprising thing about the whole affair was the rate of speed you were traveling when the crash came.
Reminds Yours Truly of folks running charge accounts all over town. Ordering 20c worth of groceries two or three times a day, everlastingly singing that same old song with the same old tune "send it out and charge it please."
There are men right here in Durant and Bryan County who didn't know they were going fast, but one day they heard a "bang" and when "the stars cleared away" found they were in debt up to their "Adam's Apple."
Its no reflection on a man to get in the hole, provided he's busy digging toe-holds to get out, and not simply setting down on the bottom of said hole, playing mumble-peg and ordering his meals sent down.
Gentle Reader, if I were you I'd make one more determined effort to pay cash, at least, for your groceries. Oh! yes, its inconvenient, but ask any well-to-do citizen of Durant or Bryan County if they got their start conveniently.
Give our store a trial, or if you have quit us for some reason, try again. We are improving our stock; our methods and service all the time.

Yours truly
W. E. Strickland
